Greece - She Deserves Our Help Today Patriotic Tradition 2,000 Years Old

The things men are really willing to fight for — liberty, the defense of one's country and home — are usually won in the end. For though there are dark days when the stoutest leart is discouraged, when a patriot is fighting for the very land he lives on he has an advantage in will and determination and courage that overmatches the odds of an invader's greater numbers. . . Which reminds us that this week Hope and Hempstead county are being asked to contribute to the Greek Relief Fund — to which every American should respond in-

Regent Prince Paul Escapes to Greece; and Rest of Axis-Signing Clique Are Slapped in Jail by Aroused Yugoslavs

BUDAPEST, Hungary—(AP)—Seventeen year-old King Peter the Second of Yugoslavia took the helm in Yugoslavia Thursday in a popular surge of disapproval of Tuesday's pact with the Axis and swore in a government to defend the country's independence after a night of rioting and bloody demonstrations.

Regent Prince Paul who approved the Axis pact was reported to have fled to Greece with his Grecian wife and the government of Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic, who went to Vienna to sign the agreement with Hitler, was overthrown.

Reports from Belgrade said Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Alksander Markovic, who also had an important role in the pact-signing, and most of the members of the overthrown cabinet, were under arrest.

took over as premier and formed a cabinet.
Many persons were killed and wounded in demonstrations throughout the night.

Rioting took place in many streets of Belgrade all night. The Belgrade radio broadcast an appeal to army garrisons throughout the kingdom to support the new king and government and help preserve order.

At the same time all reserve officers were ordered to report to their garrisons at once. The Belgrade radio said the new cabinet was sworn in by King Peter.

In demonstrations in the capital and provinces crowds carried British and Russian flags and shouted "long live Britain and Russia! Down with Germany and Italy!"

Students marched with linked arms and sang patriotic and nationalistic songs. Many were arrested.

Yugoslays United

The new government represents all elements of the Yugoslav population,

The British radio, heard by CBS, reported that a military governor had been appointed for Beigrade who issued a proclamation declaring:

"The glorious Yugoslav army is ready to defend the independence and integrity of the country. The army has taken the oath of allegiance to the new war minister, Gen, [lic."

The commandant appealed for the people to stand united behind the army. Reports from Belgrade pictured crowds swarming into the streets immediately after they heard of the change of Flags and bunting were brought out and buildings were decorated. Marching throngs cheered the new monarch, who ordinarily would not have taken over the throne until September 6, his 18th birthday.

Newspapers brought out special editions carrying the king's proclamation in large type on their front pages, together with pictures of the monarch.

All trains were halted at the Yugoslav frontier and passengers were not permitted to enter the country.

All telephone calls, even diplomatic communications, were cut by the Yugoslays. Movable Traffic Towers County Feed,

Few Changes in Personnel On the other side of the picture, the easons given for putting through the reorganization were that the three former agencies were always quarreling with each other, and the internal rows of the old Air Safety Board finally made reorganization necessary by presidential order. Politics Between Missouri Bosses. Hill-Billies

HONOLULU, Hawaii—Take a deep breath, David Kekonfauliionapalihauiúliokekoolau Kaapuawaokamehameia, now four years old, may some day be a U. S. Senator. It all started when the Washington, D. C. Star, thousands of miles from the cool shade of the "Senator's" Hawaitan garden, suggested in a humorous editorial that one of the disadvantages of admitting Hawaii to statehood would be the possibility of its electing a senator by that name. Newspaper reporters here sought but the little chap with the big name and have been bothering him ever since, but at no time will David Kan . . etc., comment on his political plans. He prefers to fish. The offer of a stick of gum serves to divert him only momentarily from his angl-

David is the son of David M. Kanpu, famed for the manner in which he lives in traditional old Hawaiian style at Punatuu, Oahu. His name, translated, means "the beautiful kon tree growing on the windward side of the Koolau range, Oahu."
"From the time he arises in the norning until the time he retires at night, the 'Senator' does as he pleases," says his father speaking as political adviser. "That is in accordance with our belief that a man's decision and actions should be based on the dietate of his mood or inspiration."

The "Senator's" name should not, n the opinion of his father, stand in the way of his political future. For the name may legally be telescoped to David Kekoa Kaapu.

But the Senator's habit of dress may be somewhat more of an obstacle to his election. In place of a congressman's traditional frock coat and lowing tie. David's customary attire consists of a thick coat of tan, supermposed on his naturally golden brown

New Bread for Kroger Stores

B-1 or Enriched Bread Introduced in This Area

Introduction of Bl or enriched bread by Kroger stores in this area is in eeping with recommendations of federal authorities who recognize the health building qualities of the new bread as an important contribution to the national defense effort, according to G. E. Houston, Little Rock branch manager under whose supervision the stores are operated.

Kroger's enriched bread was deeloped by the Kroger Food Foundation, nationally known research or-ganization, working in cooperation with the National Resernch Counci and the Committee on Food and Nutrition of the American Medical Association, Houston pointed out. The bread contains Vitamin BI or thiamin which helps convert sugars and starches into ready energy; iron, which helps in the formation of red blood cells, and nicotinic acid, a nerve toning factor, he added.

was explained that the enriched bread is not changed in color, flavor or texture, and that the Bi quantity to provide approximately one-half of each person's daily Bl requirement when two slices are eaten three times each day.

Preparation of the bread is under the supervision of Kroger food chemists who have been doing development and research work on the formula for several months with the help and advice of federal agencies and research groups.

Widespread interest in enriched bread has developed during the past year, partly as the result of experiments in Great Britain where the government is said to be planning the compulsory addition of these healthful vitamins and minerals to all cereal products as a war measure, and because it was felt that the enriched bread represented an important step toward better health in our own country. Another important development in the food field is the recent introduction by Kroger stores of grade labeling on certain Kroger canned foods. These items, labeled in accordance with government specifications, are available now and the company plans to xtend grade labeling to additional tems soon. This type of labeling is designed to ssist consumers in selecting various grades of merchandise more intellicently and gives them assurance that hey are buying merchandise of the quality they want, the Kroger official

Mail For Army From Home

Letters From Homefolks Mean Much to Soldier

By JACK STINNETT WASHINGTON-If there's anythiny n the world that sounds better to a soldier than "Soupce-ee, Soupce, Soupee," it's the bugle call that means Mail From Home!

Twice a day, in camps from San Diego to Newfoundland, it rings out, and the boys cluster around their company mail orderlies - trying to ippear nonchalant and "who-gives-awhoop" but all straining their ear drums to catch the call of their names that means a letter from home, from the best girl, the wife, or the pal behind.

Back of all this is the modern story of "the mail must go through." may seem a little more prosaic than in those days when the Pony Express rode its way through a band of yowling Indians or the early mail-plane pilots who took off in a blinding sleet storm-but if it does, it's only because the struggle of the individual must always seem more dramatic than the battle of an organization.

To illustrate the point, let's just

The postoffice department and the army believe they have solved the problem. Experts in both departments have been working on it and thinking about it ever since World War I, when haggard faces had to bend over bushels of letters and mountains of parcels and rubber-stamp them, for return to sender, whereabouts un-

If any one man deserves credit for the solution (although he'll probably never let me in his office again for saying so-he's that modest, it is Col. W. A. Kenyon. He was Postman No 1 overseas during World War I. He from Newfoundland to British Guiana, is, by designation of both the postoffice and the army, Postman No. 1 of the American army training today. Between his two periods of service are 20 years of study and the evolution of today's system, which expects to take fo rits motto the flat statement: "The army's mail goes through.'

Among the lessons learned by the army overseas in World War I was the great importance of seeing that Pvt. Johnny Q. Doe got his mail from home with the least possible delay.

But it was 20 years after that before the war and postoffice departments finally got together and laid down their "constitution and by-laws" in a working agreement. Briefly, the postoffice department takes the main through the main camp postoffices and the army takes it from there on.

A letter, properly addressed, would go this route: (1) From the train to the camp main postoffice, where it would be sorted for distribution to the division or corps or other unit postoffices. (2) These sort it again for distribution to the company mail orderlies, who (3) twice a day distribute it among the men.

It sounds simple enough, but take the problems of frequently changing personnel, transfers of units, duplication of names, extended field maneuv-

Draws on War Experience Col. W. A. Kenyon, who heads the APO has taken a page from his experience as No. 1 postman overseas in World, War I and developed the system now in use. In the first place, use the mails. That's because of in- are numbered. They were numbered fants, illiterates, invalids, etc. But in the other war, too, in sequence there are none of these in army camps, starting with one. But it wasn't very long before it was discovered that al guard men are 100 per cent mail every time a letter fell into enemy users. And on that basis, the APO is hands, that number in the frank, or serving the civilian equivalent of more cancellation, supplied the enemy with than 2,500,000 right now and by mid- information as to how many army summer will be serving the equivalent units were in the field and how they of 3,715,000. In the latter case that were distributed. The numbers were means service to more people than in changed twice, but that didn't help

Now, the division and unit postoffices still are numbered in sequence, But there's something more. Mod- but in a different way. All infantry ern armies survive only if they are division postoffices take their numbers from between 1 and 200; cavalry divisions from 201 to 250, and so on. from Benning in Georgia to Dix in New Jersey, or if it takes the field, Use Scrial Numbers

To avoid confusion through duplication or similarity of names, each man uses his army serial number afbring troops into that maneuver from ter his name, so no matter if there Florida-not whole camps, but train- training( if the World war ratio holds ing units from many camps that are there will be that many this summer), far enough advanced to take the field. number. To handle transfers of individuals, three sets of card files, with cards for every man in the army make tracing a greatly simplified matter. Improperly addressed letters finally reach their sources through a process of elimination. The letter is sent to every unit postoffice in the camp until the man is found and if he isn't, it's checked against the transfer files before it is returned or sent to the dead letter office.

By this system, Colonel Kenyon thinks he might eventually deliver a letter addressed like that one which bore only the private's name and the "No 4 in the Front Rank

An Overseas Plan

The APO also has an overseas plan worked out-not that they think they'll need it but they are not going to be caught napping again. Already, in a ninor way, it has come into use with the forces at the Atlantic bases acquired from Great Britain, from whom the government has just obtained an agreement to allow mail to these bases, to go for the domestic postal rates.
